The word DIWALI evolved from the Sanskrit word Deepavali, means "Rows of Diyas". Lit-up diyas at houses, shops and public places is an ancient Hindu tradition believes in removing negative energies.

• Traditional Diya - A Diya, Deepam or Deepak is an oil lamp made of metal brass. It is available in variety of designs, shapes and sizes which makes them more beautiful and festive. These can be placed on both sides of entrance door, foyer area and living room.

• Floating Candles - Floating candles are light weight candles that can float on top of water. They make great addition to a center table or corners of a room, entry gate, balcony and gardens as well.

• Earthen Diya - A Diya is a small lamp made of clay and a cotton wick is used to light and ghee or oil is used as fuel. These lamps can be placed in an order or series to give a beautiful look which is a good substitute of electric series lights.

• Glass Jar Lanterns - This beautiful combination of light and glass gives a very enchanting look and adds drama to the area. These lamps can be placed on side tables, dining table and shelves.

Festive décor brings the colors of nature in festive season and give it new ambience by just adding right elements at right space with just a personal touch of designing ...

- Highlighting walls - Add the festive effect by adding a dash of quirkiness and vibrancy to your plain walls. Play with the color palette - paint one wall in a brighter shade and others in lighter tones to maintain a balance as many people prefer to paint or give new look on festive mode or else can also enhance look by adding beautiful art piece on wall or just complementing wall with frames with some light effects.
- Accessories - Glorify space by using elegant accessories for rugs, curtains, cushions choose ethnic material that will complement space and create festive feel. To just add fragrance scented candles can be used and covering them with a unique random glass shape just creates a festive zeal and act as decorative element as well.
- Lighten up - The festive is just not complete without lightning elements diyas the traditional lamp is also available with a twist led diyas, led lights it just add modern touch to space and for those who are fond of tradition can enhance the look and handmade artefacts and diyas, earthen lamps as personal designing touch adds beauty to the space.
